The Royal Bengal Airline UK team flies over to Bangladesh to join its Bangladesh counterparts

Members of the Royal Bengal Airline team including Shalim Rahman, the Managing Director of Royal Bengal Airlines have traveled to Bangladesh with the renowned International Aviation consultant, Neil Hansford. Both the UK team of delegates and Mr Hansford have joined with the Bangladesh team to overlook the airline project before its proposed domestic services launch in December. The rest of the team in the UK is in constant contact with the Bangladesh team, via telephone and video conferencing, where both parties are updating each other of progress.

Shalim Rahman informed the rest of the team back in the UK that currently "all tasks and goals are on target and on going" and that "RBA is on schedule for its domestic launch date. Neil Hansford also reported that "a selection of five aircraft has been found" and that "my team have to decide which aircraft is suitable based on the criteria defined in RBA's comprehensive business plan"

Agreements for the lease and purchase of the aircraft will soon be defined and signed, thus another milestone will be achieved in RBA's goals and objectives.

Interest in the Royal Bengal Airline project has excelled both in the UK and abroad. Major potential investors have expressed their desire to join the Royal Bengal airline family. Talks are currently underway.
